Opening of Crab Season— They're Good But Scarce

Prices won't drop until the season opens up in one month, said Strazella, making his head. "Right now, locally, it looks like a million-pound season compared with ten million way back when."

TOURISTS

The rate Dungeness delicacy, now getting rarer, brought droves of tourists and gourmet chefs to the waterfront. They snatched the sweet smell of simmering crab, done to a crimson turn after 25 minutes in the steam pot. And, buying leaves of southerly French lamb to go along with the crab, they seemed as content as the fishermen were downhearted.

"Try it with aquavit—delicious!" exclaimed the Swedish Miss Crustacean, still fishing for smiles as she moved among the steam pots.

A good California wine, said a Grey Hound wine salesman, even better accompanied. You back up Spino and will continue to throw it on."

The crowd roared and waved American flags and scattered banners with slogans ranging from "God Bless Our President!" to "Spock-Go-Home!"

CROWD

U.S. Park police said that the crowd numbered 10,000 at the peak of the rally held between the monument and the outdoor Sylvan Theater stage, the scene in previous years of anti-war rallies, several of which drew larger crowds than lined out yesterday.

The faces that were turned to the stage were virtually all white, predominantly middle-aged, clean shaven and somber. Many of the attendees were members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, the sponsors of the rally, and supporters of various conservative organizations and causes.

perpetrated had come as no surprise. He said the commission had been expected "to come down on DDT."

"It is my hope that this will be the first dramatic step in removing all slow degrading pesticides from the market," Nelson said. "It does not leave the body, it accumulates. And certain parts of the United States diet, such as certain fish, are now carrying 30 parts per million, and some are carrying 100 parts per million."

A Flag That Made Mayor See Red

Mayor Richard J. Werner, face up to a simulated Viet Cong flag that was hanging in front of a residence here yesterday.

The Mayor ripped the flag down at the home of Larry Bell, 25, a substitute teacher and Vietnam veteran.

"I fought in both World War II and Vietnam," Werner said, "and when we saw an enemy flag we killed every one in the building, then took the flag down. They got off easy."

U.N. Again Denies Seat to Peking

Four Afro-Asian countries opened a dialogue with the Communist Chinese.

The hundred debate brought no surprises, except perhaps for the fact that the Soviet Union which last year gave only perfunctory endorsement to Peking did not speak this year at all. It nevertheless voted for admission.

Among the most significant changes were the switches by Belgium, Chile and Italy from opposition to abstention, although none favored the expulsion of Taiwan.

Four Afro-Asian countries — Ghana, Libya, Mauritania and Nigeria — switched from abstention to votes in favor of seating Peking and expelling Nationalist China. Senegal moved from abstention to opposition.

On the "important question" resolution, Libya changed from "yes" to "no," reflecting the more militant stance of the new Arab republic. Ecuador, which had abstained last year, voted in favor this time.

Malaysia changed from "yes" to abstention and Kuwait from "no" to abstention.

COMPLAINTS

Werner said he went to the home at 100 Escalons drive after receiving six telephone complaints.

"I couldn't believe it was possible," he said, "so I went up there and saw that it was. I asked them to remove the flag and they wouldn't do it, so I did."

Werner said he tore the flag up and gave Bell a third of it.

He reported that Werner threatened his wife. He quoted the mayor as saying, "If you ever do this again, I'll kill you."

REACTION

Bel said he was "thinking very seriously" of swearing out a warrant against the mayor today, charging him with trespassing and the violation of private property.

"I hope he's," Werner snapped. "If I see him up for what he is."

Bel said he lives with his wife and two children in a small apartment. He said he was able to look at another man, he said, after a pause. "I don't want to kill him. I want to love him."

Day After Skyscraper Blasts

It was business as usual in the day in the GM Radio Corporation of America and Chase Manhattan Bank buildings despite the blasts, except in the devastated areas.

During the day there were bombs reported by anonymous phone callers at the Cornish Arms hotel, a 45-story building on Maiden Lane, the Western Electric Company and 200 East 43rd Street but searches following evacuation of workers turned up nothing. The United Nations headquarters also was searched twice for bombs, but none was found.

LETTERS

The New York Times and United Press International received unopened special delivery letters early yesterday which said:

"During this week of anti-war protest, we set off explosives in the offices of Chase Manhattan, Standard Oil and General Motors. Guards at all three buildings and news offices throughout the city were telephoned 20 to 60 minutes in advance to insure that the buildings would be clear of people.

"The Vietnam war is only the most obvious evidence of the way this country's power destroys people."

"The giant corporations of America have now spread themselves all over the world, forcing entire foreign economies into total dependence on American money and goods."

"Here at home these same corporations have made us into insane consumers, devouring increasing quantities of useless credit cards and household appliances."

"Here at midnight jobs. Vast machines pollute our air, water and food."

"Spiro Agnew may be a household word, but it is the rarely seen men like David Rockefeller of Chase Manhattan, James Roche of General Motors and Michael Halder of Standard Oil who run the system behind the scenes.

"The empire is breaking down as peoples all over the globe are rising up to challenge its power. From the inside, black people have been fighting a revolution for years."

"And finally, from the heart of the empire, while Americans are striking blows for liberation."

CALLS

Rockefeller is chairman of Chase Manhattan and a member of the family which founded Standard Oil. Roche is chairman of GM and Halder retired as chairman of Standard Oil six weeks ago.

There were also telephone calls made to the buildings shortly before the blasts to warn personnel. The caller was described as a young, shouting male with a pleasant, unaccented voice.

In Amman, Jordan, a spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed that his organization was responsible for the bombings, but did not explain why. NCA in its Arab League's black list of firms that deal with Israel, but General Motors and Standard Oil reportedly are not.

Informed sources said the bombings appeared to be the work of a conspiracy because one person could hardly have carried out the operation. All the bombs exploded within a span of eight minutes at locations spaced as widely as midtown and the financial area in lower Manhattan.

The bombs, apparently set off by timing devices, may have been carried in a dispatch container the size of a dispatch case, a police spokesman said. There was no immediate explanation of how the bombers could have eluded the high security maintained in office buildings at night, unless the bombs were deposited Monday during off hours.

There were 1300 nightclubs in the 40-story Chase Manhattan building at the 40th floor, just below Rockefeller's office, but none was in the blast area.

More than 300 nightclubbers were evacuated from the RCA building's 60th floor Rainbow Room when the explosion ripped through the 50th floor. The blast in the nearly unoccupied 50-story GM tower was on the 20th floor.

Police said the blasts were "not a threat to the city," but three months at the Marine Midland Bank, Federal Reserve, World Bank, Department Center, and Macy's department store.

New Letters From Zodiac --Boast of More Killings have forwarded copies of the cryptogram to a number of experts and expect it to be deciphered within a few days.

They, too, feel that the new victims' names, or some other definite information regarding a specific double-murder, may be hidden among the strange symbols.

At the moment, the few names links between the two San Jose girls and Zodiac are: "Zodiac kills the two girls and Zodiac are the two out-dated murders occurred in August."

Deborah Gay Farling, 14, and Kathleen Soney, 15, were slain last August 3.

• Zodiac used a long, thin-bladed knife in his attack at Lake Berryessa, repeatedly stabbing a young girl who died two days later and her companion.

The bodies of the two San Jose girls bore some 150 knife wounds each—from a long, thin-bladed knife.

• Zodiac's letter contained five cross marks which possibly refer to five attacks. Comparing these markings against a map, one letter revealed that can be drawn is that they pinpoint Lake Berryessa, Vallejo (where two attacks occurred), San Francisco and San Jose.

The girls were murdered on weekends, And, in the Lake Berryessa stabbings, the savagery of the attack occurred broad daylight.

August 3 was a Sunday and the attack occurred broad daylight.

Despite the circumstantial evidence, the police officer in charge of the San Jose investigation does not think Zodiac is the killer of the girls.

Reformers Agree

comprehensive review of the draft laws. His committee is ready to approve the lottery bill but only with amendments that reformers will not try to load it up with amendments on the floor.

Senators said reporters after the meeting that he had promised broad hearings next year and would personally make "every reasonable effort" to get a reform bill to the Senate.

Kennedy joined Stennis at a conference in the Senate and agreed that it would be better to give reform proposals the period of prime exposure to the draft from seven years to one. The 19-year-olds would be called first, and when a youth is called, he would be personally expected that he would not be drafted except in time of war personnel. The caller was described as a young, shouting male with a pleasant, unaccented voice.

assurances I need to support the bill as it is."

The administration's proposed lottery would work this way: Dates of each day of the year would be placed in a hat and drawn out one by one. If August 2 were drawn first, for example, those whose birthday fall on that date would be called first. If November 12 was drawn last, those born on that date would be the last called.

Mr. Nixon proposes to change, by executive order, from the policy of calling the oldest first to a policy of prime exposure to the draft from seven years to one. The 19-year-olds would be called first, and when a youth is called, he would be personally expected that he would not be drafted except in time of war personnel. The caller was described as a young, shouting male with a pleasant, unaccented voice.

Compromise On March In Capital

March committee said the group is satisfied with the new route.

The agreement followed several days of virtually continuous negotiations with sponsors of the march.

The route would start from the Lincoln Memorial and proceed down the grand parade avenue from the Capitol to the White House, then to the grounds of the Washington Monument for a rally, and finally to the Lincoln Memorial for a rally.

Street and from there to the grounds of the Washington Monument for a rally, and finally to the Lincoln Memorial for a rally.

Reinhardt and Washington also said the government agreed to the route after the New Mobilization promised to provide enough parade permits to ensure order during the march, which is expected to attract about 30,000 in what could be the biggest anti-war protest in the nation's capital.

Pontiac officials said no final decision has been made but they indicated a light breeze of between 1000 and 2000 participants may be brought up before the week end.

The Defense Department called it "a normal part of the precautionary measures we have been asked to take by the Justice Department."

Any such unit brought into the capital area would be stationed on Federal property and would be used in a peacekeeping mission only after a presidential proclamation of emergency, authorities said.

However, Federal troops would be used to guard several buildings without such a formal proclamation.
