

Crazy Horse Saloon Owner Held On Warrant

FAIRFIELD — The owner of the Crazy Horse Saloon in rural Fairfield was arrested Thursday and booked in county jail on a governor's extradition warrant.

Ralph A. Spinelli Jr., is charged with the June 8 armed robbery of Mary's Club in Portland, Ore. Three men allegedly took $17,000 in the hold-up.

Superior Judge Raymond Sherwin denied a writ of habeas corpus filed yesterday.

Los Angeles attorney Harrison

W. Hertzberg, who represents Spinelli, states that Spinelli has been denied his constitutional rights in violation of the fourth amendment (right of search and seizure regulated).

Judge Sherwin noted that the arraigning court is authorized to admit Spinelli to bail in the sum of $5,000.

An affidavit submitted in support of the seizure listed the items confiscated from the Crazy Horse Saloon as a result of search in July authorized by Fairfield municipal Judge Curtis A. Singleton.

Items found included a Lugar pistol, a 38 cal. snub nose revolver, a 45 cal. automatic, false sideburns, a false mustache, a salt and pepper colored man's wig, and $17,000 in $100 denominations.

The Oregon police have stated that three people were involved in the robbery. One man was wearing a styled man's haircut, possibly salt and pepper in color.

The suspects used a .38 cal. snub nose revolver and a .45 cal. automatic.

One suspect was wearing a false mustache and possibly false sideburns.

All four victims in the hold-up identified Spinelli in a line-up according to Oregon police.

Spinelli was arraigned before municipal Judge Wallace Cox in Vallejo.
