

Sketch Made Of Killer in Taxi Slaying

Police sketch of suspect in cab driver's slaying.

A composite drawing of the suspect wanted in the Saturday night slaying of Yellow Cab driver Paul Lee Stine has been released by Homicide Inspectors William Armstrong and David Tosche.

The suspect who got $10 or $11, is described as a white man, 25-30 years old, 5'8" or 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds. He has reddish brown hair which he wears in a crew cut, and was wearing heavy-rimmed glasses and a navy blue or black jacket at the time of the slaying.

Stine, of 1842 Fell St., was 29 years old. He had been working 9 p.m.-5 a.m. as a Yellow Cab driver for the last several months to pay his way through San Francisco State College, where he was a Ph.D. candidate in English.

He was also a part-time insurance agent.
