

Congregational Church Setting For Cheney-Hathaway Wedding

Mrs. Ann Marion Hattie was daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hattie, 1020 Glen Ave., became the bride of Donald Lee Cheney, 684 N. Rock St., at the Congregational Church.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore E. Cheney of Bakersfield.

Roman Gordon of Bakersfield carried the two rings and kept them also of Bakersfield until the wedding. The Rev. Richard H. Spears read the service in the church which was decorated with white and blue flowers and arrangements.

Mr. Cheney's father, his daughter and son-in-law wore a long processional robe and lace over a taffeta. The lace had gold embroidery and lace appliques adored the skirt which flowed into a long train. The bride wore a one-shoulder gown with a lace-trimmed bodice and a lace-trimmed crown completed the bridal ensemble.

Miss Hathaway carried white carnations and stephanotis with a white corsage. Mary Lee, maid of honor, had many sprays of bluebells in the corsage.

Misses Bette Armonies, maid of honor, wore a gown of brilliant blue chiffon over satins and a wide white sash. She was dressed in a traditional Catholic marching bouquet and a flowing train of light blue chiffon. The dress was the hand-made work of Misses Sandra and Louise Hathaway, sisters of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Cheney's attendants were Ronald Allen of Valencia best man, and Sandra Parmentola of Pomona, maid of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Carol and Robert Gordon of Bakersfield.

The young couple planned their own courtship and accompanied Richard Atwell, student at the University of Southern California, the couple are living at the Pacific Avenue address.

At the reception for the 200 guests at Pilgrim Hall, Judith and Jana Hamilton, cousins of the bride, sang a solo in the serving. Mrs. Spears held the guest book.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were the

'Stick Together' Sisters Are Told

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: How come kids have to be treated like dirt? We five sisters, aged 9 through 17, are in a blue funk over our mother and stepfather. They have two other children who think they own the world. If you jump into them by mistake they tell our stepfather "she's been in your house" or "You ahole! I'm gonna tell mom!"

When we're not being treated like dirt we're being told we're not good enough. When our real dad was alive we were told we were good enough. Now we can't even go to him because he's in jail. He's been in jail since 1958. He's been in and out of jail ever since and now he's in there again. Mom and stepdad have to buy them little things to make them happy.

They say "If we get in trouble we'll tell mom." All we get is "Why did you spend so much time with your mother?" My mother says we don't have time to attend church, even though we're the only ones in the church. When we go to bed Sunday evenings, we put on the radio and listen to a church program. Can you help us? Five Little Girls.

Dear Girls: Even if you don't get along with your mother and stepfather, you still have each other. If you stick together, you're stronger. You should be as lonely as you claim to be. Continue to be a team, not separate as a group. As each of you grow older and more able to care for yourself, your little brother or stepbrother will not be so fragile.

Dear Helen: There is a crisis in my family. My mother, my Grandma, She and Dad don't get along. He has a stroke and Mom asked her to move in with her. She came back and Dad got better; she came back, and Dad got worse.

Now, I am 17 and my boy friend and I plan a two-week vacation in Florida. Grandma doesn't want me to go away.

Though my older sister will stay with her, Dad grows more infirm every day.

And I, Grandma will bring on another stroke for him.

This is an emergency.—Woman and Daughter.

Dear Worried: Feeling as you do, talk to your family doctor and if he advises speak frankly to your mother and grandfather. Remind them that prevention of a stroke, peace of mind is of paramount importance to your father. If you feel you must, get a second opinion. Your mother and daughter should live elsewhere.

The bridegroom was graduated in 1958 from Kroc Vocational Union High School in Bakersfield. He also graduated from the University of Southern California and served two years in the Air Force. He is studying at the University of Southern California and is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers and a member of the Mechanical Engineering Club.

The new pastor is a 1967 graduate of Princeton, a 1966 graduate of Stanford, and a 1964 graduate of the University of Texas.
