Remapping Action Stalls While Both Houses Eye Other

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Each house waited for repartition, even though it was officially the Senate that finished off the day, as the Senate and Assembly sat in full deadlock over the issue of who gets what up there.

The houses met for just a few minutes, then adjourned as the special session got under way.

The Assembly's bill to repartition itself, passed five days ago, has been referred to the lower house, kept from moving to the Senate by a reconsideration motion by Speaker Jesse M. Urush.

Urush told newsmen: "We have done our job on repartitioning and now we're going to withdraw State Districts," he said.

At the same time, the Senate's re-appearance bill, noted Stephen Teale, was still on the floor.

"We'll get the bill in this house ... we'll get working. We've got to have the Assembly."

A few minutes later, Sen. Pres. Tom H. H. M. Burns said he had no objection to the impasse. "The Assembly bill has been passed; I haven't got a problem with that."

For the second straight day, Urush put off action on his move to reconsider the 58-48 vote of last Thursday, which killed the Senate bill, redrawing lines for 58 of the 60 lower house districts. This carried the bill to the Senate district along equal-population lines by Dec. 9.

By RICHARD GAKOWSKI
MARTINEZ — The Contra Costa County Jail is not a hotel for wayward souls. It wasn't designed to be one. In fact it does not even have a restaurant or a shop that caters to the wayward.

It is a prison, designed to hold people against whom who have done allegedly have committed some type of offense against society.

It is a tough place under normal circumstances and it's even tougher now, following the riots.

I am one.

I am inside as a prisoner of the County of Contra Costa. Normalcy may be hard to come by here this weekend if there are no further incidents.

SECRET PLAN

When I was decided that I would attempt to get inside the jail the first thought was to approach the Sheriff's Office and ask them to let me in. I was stopped at the entrance as a prisoner was being vetted. First, the sheriff might not have granted permission. Second, we did not want him to know I was attempting to get in jail.

The only other alternative was to contact someone and get arrested, taking a chance that some of the deputies would recognize me and let me out.

It worked.

TELEGRAM

"Busted" is prison slang for arrested. It is also a verb in an offensive sense.

"Burns" is a jail term and the "Inside" of course is the county jail. "Dude" is the prisoners' term for the sheriff.

"I think we're getting closer to the final stage," he said. "I made a deal with the sheriff this week, he then added that he doesn't want to do so until he's got the Assembly's re-repartitioning bill."

LATE SATURDAY

The size of lower house districts has been reduced to 58 from the size of upper house districts, he explained.

THE LECTURE

The bull stopped me all right but he did give me a lecture.

"But I am a human and the Inside" of course is the county jail. "Dude" is the prisoners' term for the sheriff.
